

Election Conversations

Darrel Mussato

Sounded willing to discuss options and look at the alternatives although he publicly stated on more than one occasion during the election that he favoured a 25 meter 10 lane pool as recommended by the Rec Commission. He has not publicly acknowledged the impending increase in city and district population that all the development is going to bring.

Robin Hicks

Robin is from Coquitlam and has been involved in the Coquitlam Aquatics Centre. Has offered to meet with us to review our plan.

Lisa Muri

Has ideas and willing to discuss strategy for the pool. She is on record as favouring a 50 meter pool at the Lucas Centre location. It would require new road access and a public referendum.

Matthew Bond

Didn't tell me that he supported the pool project. I told him about it at length. He is the first millennial on council. He has demonstrated that he can get things done for the mountain biking community. More social media savvy than most people on council. The only person to have come to my door in over 30 years in North Vancouver.

Holley Back

Supports the 50 meter pool; suggests that we get on with fund raising initiatives to demonstrate user group commitment

Don Bell

Supports the pool. Would like to see a new capital funding model to share capital costs with the district. Don was involved in a prior 50 meter pool initiative that occurred when he was mayor of the district.

Craig Keating

Suggested getting a bi-partisan committee to review the options available. Did not seem to be heavily opposed although officially he wants a 1/3 split between the city, district and West Van. Said he favoured a behind the scenes negotiation to public presentations to council. He has not publicly acknowledged the impending increase in city and district population that all the development is going to bring.

Linda Buchanon

Didn't get a chance to meet with Linda.
